

As America is still coming to terms with the deaths of 20 children in a Newton, Connecticut, school, a Kentucky psychiatrist has some thoughts on what people can do to help prevent another such tragedy. More on the story from Richard Farmer.

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/1231farmer.mp3{/audio}