

After 2 and a half years of work and countless hours of strategy and learning, the nursing staff at T.J. Samson has earned the prestigious "Pathway to Excellence" designation. T. J. Samson Community Hospital is the second hospital in Kentucky to obtain this designation. The other facility is the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington, KY. There are only 66 healthcare facilities nationwide that have this designation. In a two part story on what this means for the hospital we begin with Chief Nursing Officer at TJ is Margaret Billingsley explaining the designation

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/0131billingsley2.mp3{/audio}

And Billingsley says its something that says a lot about the quality of nurses at T.J. Samson:

{audio}http://wcluradio.com/newscuts/0131billingsley1.mp3{/audio}

Tomorrow will learn about how Pathway to Excellence help patients and becomes a better place to work.

