Mr. Terry L. Bunnell, of Glasgow, which most of us know as CEO of The People's Bank, was recently selected as the new President for the United States Tennis Association of Kentucky. Bunnell took office at the end of January and has previously served as USTA- KY's, Director and Treasurer.

Bunnell told WCLU news he was thrilled to have been selected:

Bunnell's role as the chief volunteer will be to oversee a 21 member board from across the state, as well as a USTA-KY staff and various committees. The USTA KY is involved in the sport of tennis for all ages, and all across the state and boasts over 8300 members. USTA KY, through their 'Raise a Racquet' program, also does charitable good works to the Kentucky tennis community, including college scholarships and funding for junior players.

Along with the health benefits, tennis is also a way to build friendships, meet great people and will create future opportunities:
