The real estate firm of Taylor & Taylor will handle the sale.

WEDNESDAY: BROKE THE DROUGHT? Mr. I. H. Atkinson recalled an old saying, tried it, and believes that it paid off. One day last week he was sitting on his front porch and saw a large snake following a frog toward the porch. He reached for the closest weapon, which was a broom. He struck the snake and broke the broom, having to finish killing the snake with the handle. He remembered the old adage, that if you killed a snake to lay it in a tree with the stomach up and it would rain. He placed the snake in a tree and it rained within three hours. That's one way of breaking a drought.

THURSDAY: The Glasgow Bruins continued undefeated in the South Central Baseball League by winning over Burkesville 10-4 as Harlan Pinkston sent the Bruins ahead in the sixth with a grand-slam homer.
